Mahebourg

Mahebourg is a village on the south-eastern coast of Mauritius. The village is rich in culture & history, and is known for its beautiful beaches; coastal suburbs, known as Pointe D'Esny

The National History Museum (Naval Museum)

A trip to the National History Museum of Mahebourg is the best way to know more about Mauritian History. Situated along the main road of the town, the museum clearly teaches you how our island has been discovered by Portuguese sailors and colonised by the French and British during the 18th century.

Ile aux Aigrettes

Those visiting this island neighbouring Mahebourg village will find the last remains of the dry, ebony forest that once grew in abundance across the main island. They will also witness some of the work the Mauritius Wildlife Foundation has done to preserve endangered species by replanting and reintroducing vegetation, birds and reptiles, including rare orchids and the famous pink pigeon.
